Growing up in a digital world, I realized that many students lack access to professional software like Adobe Acrobat because of high subscription costs. I decided to learn web development to solve this problem for my community.

In the current digital era, the Portable Document Format (PDF) has become the backbone of academic communication. Whether it's a thesis from Karachi University or notes from a small school, PDF ensures that the information is preserved exactly as intended. This format is crucial for students because it allows them to read documents across different operating systems without layout issues.
